SPARKLING WINES

France is a good place to start because everybody knows about French Champagne, but there's a lot of sparkling wine made in France that doesn't come from Champagne but is insanely delicious. We are listing a couple of great examples from Philippe Hérard.

Italy; the home of Prosecco. Prosecco is different from a lot of other sparkling wines in the world in that it's a little bit fruitier and sometimes a little bit sweeter than most others. But that doesn't stop it from being incredibly delicious and fun to drink!

Cava is Spain's iconic sparkling wine style, and the Iberian Peninsula's answer to Champagne.

FRANCE

For hundreds of years, France basked in the reputation of being the world's greatest producer of wines. Today, that reputation is being rivalled by other wine-growing nations on four continents, and the French wine industry is facing new challenges. The French wine industry has been trying to reinvent itself, producing new wines for a changing world and European market, while continuing to provide the world's greatest wines, produced on estates with perfect conditions and centuries of wine growing tradition. For those who know how to choose, and know something about wines, France still offers some of the greatest wines, with the greatest variety, and - yes! - excellent value for money, even from the main wine areas.

ALSACE

Hugel et fils are among the most prestigious wine producers in Alsace. At Yorkshire Vintners we always believe that quality comes first, that is why part of our Alsatian range is from Hugel et Fils. They never fail to deliver consistently fantastic wines year after year.

THE LOIRE VALLEY

The Loire Valley spans 280 Kilometres and is located in the middle stretch of the Loire River in central France. It is referred to as the Garden of France due to the abundance of vineyards, fruit orchards and artichoke and asparagus fields which line the banks of the river. It is here that you will find the world famous wines of Sancerre, Pouilly-Fumé and Touraine amongst many others. The majority of production is white wine from the Chenin Blanc, Sauvignon Blanc and Melon de Bourgogne grapes, these wines tend to exhibit characteristic fruitiness with fresh, crisp flavours, especially in their youth.

BURGUNDY

Home to arguably the world's best Pinot Noir and Chardonnay, Burgundy is made up of many different areas, including Chardonnay dominated Chablis and Beaujolais; the home of Gamay. Although these areas are formally part of the Burgundy wine region, wines from these sub regions are usually referred to by their own area names. Burgundy offers some really special wines with a finesse that is unrivalled anywhere else in the world.

RHÔNE

Rhône is split into two main areas; Northern Rhone and Southern Rhône. The Northern Rhône is a land of steep slopes, carved into granite hillsides by the river, over thousands of years. Vines cling to near vertical surfaces, or terraces carved into the rock. It is predominantly a red wine area, but there are some rare and truly breath-taking white wines that come from here. Towards the south, the steep slopes give way to a broad valley floor which is baking hot in the summer. It is from here that the vast majority of Rhône wine comes and although most of it is entry level plonk, pockets of fantastic quality do exist. We are only interested in the very best quality at each price point.

FRANCE

SOUTHERN FRANCE

Wine in the South of France has always had a rustic feel when compared to the produce of Bordeaux or Burgundy. This is the home of the do it yourself wine makers; generally farmers who would grow their own grapes and make their own wine, if only to be drunk by the family. Up until recent years, the general quality of wine coming from the area was never considered to be too fantastic. Oh how things have changed! This area now offers spectacular wines, excellent value for money and top end as well as entry level wines that will easily challenge competitors from other regions.

While Italy has successfully planted the vast majority of the dominant international grape varieties, the country's domestic vines are what offer the true flavour characteristics. With over 2,000 native grape varieties covering varied terrain, growing in forgiving climates and all packed on one outstanding peninsula, you can imagine that the resulting wine combinations would be just as diverse as the sub-cultures that surround them, this is what has made Italian wines world renowned.

SPAIN

An improvement in the quality of Spanish wines, and the popularity of the country's food, sporting heroes and culture - have all contributed to a sales surge. Spain has more land under grape cultivation than any other country in the world. It is also home to numerous world-class native grape varieties.

PORTUGAL

Situated along the Atlantic Ocean and sharing a top to bottom border with Spain, Portugal maintains over twenty distinct DOC wine growing regions. It's no secret that Portugal has gifted the world with astounding fortified wines largely Port and Madeira for over 200 years (see pages 26 and 27); but it's the Portuguese table wines from the Douro and Dao in the north and the Alentejo in Portugal's southeast corner that have started garnering some well-deserved notoriety abroad. That is not to say that you can't find high end, high dollar wines from Portugal, just that there are plenty of good bargain wines to be had as well.

CROATIA, SERBIA, GREECE & MACEDONIA

Croatia: Istrian wine growing sites are located in the northernmost part of the Mediterranean, on white and red earth, ideally exposed to sunlight. In this place, wine has always been part of tradition, identity and everyday life.

Santorini, Greece: Wines full of aroma and intense mineral character are typically produced on the island of Santorini. They are very versatile, matching with most seafoods, cheese, chicken and pork dishes.

AUSTRALIA

Australia has more than 60 designated wine regions across the country and has developed a worldwide reputation for its award-winning wines. With a distinctly Australian heritage, good brand recognition and world-wide appeal across a suite of offerings it appears to have the strongest claim to be voted their national drink. With history, heritage and provenance, these wines are rich with unique character, and are part of Australia's vinous past - and future.

NEW ZEALAND

New Zealand is home to what many wine critics consider the world's best Sauvignon Blanc and it is very easy to see their point. New Zealand produces wines that are unlike anything else in the world. Sauvignon Blanc and Pinot Noir, perhaps the country's two main wine exports, are truly unique when compared to their counterparts from the rest of the world.

SOUTH AFRICA

Known for some spectacular Bordeaux Blends and for the native Pinotage, South Africa is home to big, hot, alcoholic red wines. However, out towards the coast, where the temperature is slightly cooler, some fantastic white wines are found. Chenin Blanc is the most common white variety in South Africa and can be found all the way up and down the price ladder but look out for Viognier; a white variety that does especially well in the country's climate.
